Abstract

This poster will have images of recent volumes published by the critical editions being edited by the Institute for American Thought. Information will tell how long the critical editions have been in existence, how much funding has been received. The new fifth critical edition will be mentioned.

We will provide information on our five scholarly critical editions. Three of them publish the works of the classical American philosophers Charles S. Peirce (1839–1914), Josiah Royce (1855–1916), and George Santayana (1863–1952), and two others the works of the famous abolitionist Frederick Douglass (1818–1895), and the short stories of Ray Bradbury (1920–).
